The Verge reported on Wednesday that the representative from Texas's 17th district had been using a Twitter account to post out-of-context messages about sex and abortion. The account, @SheilajacksonLee, sent out-of-context messages telling followers to "die" and "die" about former President Barack Obama. The Washington Post reported. Although the account was apparently wiped clean soon after the messages surfaced, they were archived online and include a screenshot of one of her latest tweets. "Obama needs to die in prison," it read. Jackson Lee took to Twitter to confirm the report on Wednesday night, telling followers that "there was some hacking to my account this week." "If any post and/or tweet were tasteless and unacceptable, I condemn it as well as the hacker," she wrote. "It must be held accountable." The account reportedly has had an account for the past decade, although the congresswoman did not take over the handle until January. Lee reportedly held office in the the Congressional Black Caucus from 1987-1995.Liver transplantation.
